

HOUSE OF LORDS BREEDING TROUBLE

Determination to Reject the Budget Means Conflict With The Commons.

CHOSEN WAY OF DESTRUCTION

Declares Daily Chronicle—Calls it Shameful Conspiracy Against The Commonwealth.

London, Nov. 16.—The terms of the House of Lords' motion to reject the budget, which he gave formal notice in the house of lords today, were communicated to Premier Asquith and the cabinet council. Asquith anticipates that 200 peers will support Lord Lansdowne, while the supporters of the government in the house of lords number only 40. On the rejection of the budget it is expected that the premier will move to the house of commons a resolution strongly condemning the peers' action, affirming the sole right of the commons to deal with matters of taxation and declaring the peers' attempt to force a dissolution unconstitutional.

What further course Premier Asquith will take is not known, but it is quite likely that the cabinet will resign unless the government is defeated at the elections.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the opposition in the house of commons, will deliver a speech at Manchester tomorrow night, while the rejection of the budget is an invasion by the lords of the royal prerogative and of the commons' privilege, and that if the commons establish a precedent, the right to control the country's finances will make themselves the prerogative power in the state by their ability to destroy the budget, stop the king's revenue and force the dissolution of parliament every year.

Liberal newspapers, this morning (Nov. 17) describe Lord Lansdowne's motion as an act of war.

"The lords have chosen the way of destruction. It is as though some malign influence had been at work to bring the house of lords before the people's gaze, with all its imperfections in its head, blind and unseeing, its standing forth as the selfish defender of privileges in land and liquor and the champion of taxation of food, a more shameful conspiracy against the commonswealth has never been attempted."

SALT LAKE GIRL WINS NEW HEALTH

Suffers Years in Ignorance of Her Real Ailment.

VICTIM OF PARASITE.

Treats for Many Diseases Without Relief but Now Is Well.

One of the most remarkable of the many unusual experiences related to the Cooper "stomach man," the eastern expert who has been meeting the people of Salt Lake, was told yesterday. It was a Salt Lake girl who was the victim of the ailment, Miss Lillian G. Ford, residing at the Gold Hotel, South West Temple street. Miss Ford is an attractive young woman of about 20. She said:

"Many persons will not believe the tale I have to relate and I can hardly believe it myself, yet it was my own experience. For years I have suffered from what seemed to be a most peculiar complication of diseases. My appetite came in fits and starts—at times I would eat ravenously and at others I would lose the sight of food. I seemed to be growing abnormally nervous. I would have fits of temper which I could not understand myself, and really natural sleep became a stranger to me. This was further complicated by pains in my back and sides, dizziness, headaches, and periods of awful mental depression. I consulted many doctors and it seemed they treated for almost every disease they could think of. But I never seemed to get any better. I had found it almost impossible to take any interest in life, and thought I was the victim of some incurable disease."

"Although I had practically no faith whatever that I would receive any benefit I finally decided to call on this 'stomach man.' I came to see him here at Smith's 'Rue Corner' drug store, and he seemed to take so much interest in my case that some way I began to have hope."

"I took a course of his treatment and then I discovered what had been ailing me for so many years—almost all of my girlhood. I was the victim of a monster parasite, the most terrible looking thing I had ever seen in my life. I was very much frightened and hastened up here where I was told it was a tape worm."

"It is a delicate subject for a girl to discuss, but after thinking it over at length I have decided that it is a duty I owe to other women to let them know the nature of the awful thing that sapped my vitality for so long. For I know that many other persons must be afflicted in the same way I was—and I myself would have gladly thanked any person who could have told me of this years ago."

accused by Mme. Steinhilf of complicity in the murder of the latter's husband and step-mother, today brought suit for $4,000 damages against Mme. Steinhilf, Remy Couillard, the servant in the Steinhilf home, was accused of the crimes by his mistress and threatened to sue her for libel.

REGULATION OF MONOPOLIES

Ex-Secy. of the Interior Garfield And Dr. Charles W. Eliot Make Pleas for Federal Control.

AN IMPERATIVE NECESSITY.

That Government Take Immediate Steps for the Conservation of Natural Resources.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 16.—Pleas for the government regulation of monopolies were voiced tonight before the joint convention of the National Municipal league and the American Civic association by former Secy. of the Interior James R. Garfield, and by Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard. Both declared that it was imperative that the government take immediate steps for the conservation of resources.

Mr. Garfield said that the country's natural resources are in imminent danger of exhaustion, and that interests which developed this source of national wealth must be regulated.

Mr. Garfield also maintained that the interests of the people were not being properly safeguarded in the Alaska coal fields and that legislation on that subject was urgently needed.

GARFIELD'S ADDRESS.

He said in part:

"The permanent welfare of our nation cannot be assured unless we, in this generation, provide for the conservation of our natural resources. Hitherto we have been needlessly wasteful. We have been too much occupied with the present; too little with the future. The inventory of our resources shows the immediate danger of their depletion or exhaustion."

"Conservation is pre-eminently a movement for the public welfare. Exactly as the railroads are regulated because they are public utilities, so must interests that develop natural resources be regulated, because they deal with public interests. Unfair use or monopolization of either is intolerable."

"In Alaska the coal area of a million acres has been withheld from entry, pending investigation. Laws providing for the disposition of the coal lands are not what they should be."

"Some improvements have been made in recent years, but the rights of the public are not safeguarded. None of these lands should be disposed of until legislation is enacted which will provide a method by which the coal can be developed as it is needed until such regulations as will prevent speculative or monopolistic holdings by a few great interests, and will yield to the nation a fair monetary return. Under a leasing system all these conditions can be readily improved."

"Congress has wisely provided for the great irrigation projects that have been started, but there is immediate need of legislation to control the use and development of waterpower to the end that, as with other resources, the public may, under a system of franchise or lease, protect its own great interests and obtain just compensation."

"The great progress that has been made through the recent years, will not be stopped. The people of our country will not tolerate any backward steps. They demand, and will see to it that their demand is heeded; that the great policy of conservation shall be one in the interest of public welfare."

DR. ELIOT.

Dr. Eliot was equally emphatic. "The sentiment of preserving our natural resources," he said, "has gone like wild-fire throughout the country. The people have reached positive convictions, and they mean to have conservation."

At the afternoon session, A. L. Well of Pittsburgh, who has prosecuted municipal corruption in that city, said that the greatest deterring elements in reform campaigns are public apathy and lack of financial support.
